

Save Our Unions:
Dispatches from a Movement in Distress
Steve Early discusses his new book

Thursday, July 24, 7:00 PM

Unitarian Universalist Center

1187 Franklin Street, San Francisco
Martin Luther King Room

A labor journalist who writes from a fundamental commitment to the labor movement, Steve Early draws on forty years of personal experience for his new writing collection, Save Our Unions. The book visits strikes and picket-lines, conventions and funerals – all in the course of describing the challenges American workers face trying to organize a union, or democratize one, or negotiate a contract – while trying not to lose what they had in the past. Ranging through strategies for organizing, health care reform, cross-border union campaigning, or politics less dependent on the Democratic Party, Early continually raises the question of what labor can do and should do in 2014.

A free public forum -- Wheelchair accessible -- Snacks and tea served.

Sponsored by Progressive Democrats of America San Francisco and Unitarian Universalists for Peace & Justice San Francisco